

How can I select all rows in a selection? for example i have a row with two fields, how i can select the two fields by clicking them? A: You want to use `getSelected` in combination with JavaScript's `querySelector` This is a Plunk that demonstrates that (jsFiddle). HTML: Status A B Status A B JavaScript:

var table = document.querySelector("table"); var row = table.querySelector("tr"); var cells = Array.prototype.filter.call(row.children, function (n) { return (n.type === "td" || n.type === "th"); }) var statusA = cells[0].querySelector("b").textContent; // an empty array in order to keep the context var statusB = cells.filter(function (n) { return n.querySelector("b").textContent === statusA })[0].querySelector("b").textContent; console.log(statusA + " | " + statusB); // Alternative function that uses querySelectorAll // this will iterate through all the cells with the TD element type (td or th) var cells = [].slice.call(table.querySelectorAll("td, th")); var statusA = cells[0].querySelector("b").textContent; var statusB = cells.filter(function (n) { return n.querySelector("b").textContent === statusA })[0].querySelector("b").textContent; console.log(statusA + " | " + statusB);
