Players can also "switch on" this technology from the settings menu. The system will be fully activated for the FIFA Ultimate Team Mode, and in-game during the chance creation process, leading to a 60% increase in chance creation. Chance creation is also improved in Training Mode, increasing accuracy of ball-types and chance creation. New camera adjustments In FIFA 20, the camerawork was situated, leading to the limited visual experience of the player and restricted in-game depth perception. With FIFA 22, the controls and placement of the camera have been improved to give players the complete view of the game, letting them see more of their defenders and create new gameplay possibilities. In addition, the goalkeeper has been given more time to produce an effective save. Adjustments to AI The new AI system in FIFA 22 will improve the game even further by altering behavior depending on the context, technology and players' in-game decision-making. This will ensure you'll experience further escalation of chances, and enhanced gameplay, delivering an experience you can't get elsewhere. You can be reassured that with the introduction of more human-like intelligent AI, players won't be complaining about the same old performances from their own teammates. Improved level of skill While the level of skill in FIFA 20 was satisfying to play at the best of times, players will find a more fluid animation, physicality and real-life depth to the gameplay in FIFA 22, offering a completely new level of difficulty and challenge. This comes in addition to the improved responsiveness of the ball, greater visual detail and further refinements to ball physics. The goalkeepers FIFA 22 includes all-new goalkeepers, who have been given more time to get themselves ready and will be in a better position to make saves than before. In addition, their positioning has been adjusted to complement the new 'back-to-goal' camera. Whether you're looking to take shots at goal or ensure you're on the right side of the box for the ball to drop into the penalty area, goalkeeper AI will ensure you have the best opportunities to score this goal. Improved Movement FIFA 22's movement has been improved thanks to new animations and physics. Players run more realistically, improving fluidity on the ball and feel, giving you more options for increased goal scoring opportunities. In addition, improved controls and tighter timing of player movements
